

2016 – Important Tax Information

The tax-exempt interest dividends reported on Form 1099-DIV, Box 10, are 100% exempt from federal income tax.

A portion of these tax-exempt interest dividends may also be exempt from state or local tax depending on the state and local tax laws that apply where you file your return. You may be able to reduce the taxable income that you must report by the percentages shown below. The tax-exempt interest dividends earned from obligations issued by U.S. territories (such as Puerto Rico) are generally exempt for state purposes. Therefore, you may be able to add these percentages in the table to your state-exempt percentage for a total exempt amount. Consult a tax advisor for more information.

The table below provides the portion of your tax-exempt interest dividends that was earned in each state or U.S. territory during the year.
